

Meg Kellogg, MS

Meg Kellogg has just completed her work as Program Director, Global Health Leadership Forum, School of Public Health, UC Berkeley and continues as a Health Care Consultant. Her recent consulting clients include: Kaiser Permanente, PAHO, World Bank, Inter-American Development Bank, California Department of Workers' Compensation and Adeslas Caixa insurance company, Spain. Her current client is the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, studying the health systems in three regions of Spain. Meg has extensive experience in all spheres of health care: medical groups, hospitals, health plans, government and medical technology investments. Meg has been Director of Strategic Planning and Product Development, Kaiser Permanente (16 years) and Coordinator of Quality for The Permanente Medical Group (3 years). Meg was also Founding Co-editor, Medical Technology Stock Letter, Director of Corporate Planning, Pacific Medical Center and has held leadership positions in the US Health Care Financing Administration, Washington DC. She is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of UC Berkeley and holds a masters in Community Health from Stanford University Medical School. For the last 13 years, Meg developed and directed the Global Health Leadership Forum based at University of California, Berkeley. 580 senior executives RWJ Spain Site Visit 2017 from 63 countries have come to Berkeley, European sites and Singapore to learn globally sourced innovations and proven approaches for health policy and management challenges that the US and other countries face in common. Innovative approaches for integration and for chronic care management have consistently been a key part of each session. Meg's publications have emphasized the areas of integration, quality, and predicting healthcare trends. She speaks French and Spanish.